ADVERTISEMENT.

THE original of the following Drawings were executed by CAPTAIN GOLD, of the Royal Artillery, on the suggestion of DR. ROLLO, in March, 1801, for the purpose of shewing distinctly the progress of the Vaccine and variolous Matter by Inoculation, and having been sent to the Publisher to take a copy, as stated in the annexed Letter, he imagined that a Work so clearly demonstrating the different effects of Small Pox and Cow Pock would be satisfactory to the Medical World, as likewise to the Public in general, he was therefore led to solicit permission to publish them, which was readily granted ; and he takes this opportunity of returning thanks to those Gentlemen.

DEAR SIR,

Veterinary College, March 1, 1802.

I intended to have called on you last tuesday (but it totally escaped my recollection) to have said, that I had shewn your Drawings to Drs. JENNER and WOODVILLE, and also at GUY's Society. Every one who has seen them is delighted with the accuracy of their execution, and much pleased with the contrast. The President of the Medical Society of London has requested me to employ an Artist to have them copied. This request, of course, without your sanction, I could not comply with, and it was my intention on tuesday to have learnt your pleasure on that subject.

Yours, very truly,

EDWARD COLEMAN.

Dr. ROLLO,
SURGEON-GENERAL OF THE ROYAL ARTILLERY.

Dr. ROLLO having agreed to the foregoing request, was informed, some time afterwards, by Mr. COLEMAN, that Dr. JENNER had borrowed the Drawings (which delayed the copy of them being finished by Kirtland), to lay them before the Committee of the House of Commons, and that they had been of peculiar service to his cause.
